

A Lecture by Ezra F. Vogel, the Henry Ford II Professor of the Social Sciences Emeritus at Harvard University (10/05/2012)

Dear all,

We are honored to have invited Prof. Ezra F. Vogel, the Henry Ford II Professor of the Social Sciences Emeritus at Harvard, to be the speaker for a lecture entitled “Deng Xiaoping and Foreign Relations”. This lecture is jointly organized by the Library, Publications Centre, and Department of Government and Public Administration of FSH. It will be held on 17 May 2012 (Thursday) at 4:00 p.m at S.T.D.M Auditorium of the Library.

The lecture will be based on his latest publication “Deng Xiaoping and the Transformation of China (鄧小平時代)” and examine how Deng’s experience in France and the Soviet Union shaped his later understanding of foreign relations developments. It will focus particularly on Deng’s relations with Japan, the US, and Southeast Asia in 1978 as he prepared for the policy of opening up.

For a brief introduction of Prof. Vogel, please see the following attached file:
